VOL. 5. NO. 5 — MONESSEN, PA., FRIDAY, JUNE 29, 1906. — SIX CENTS THE WEEK

AN ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE.

Tired of Life a Schoonmaker Avenue Girl Drank Carbolic Acid.

Last night about 5 o'clock Annie Vezzetti who makes her home with Mrs Marshall over Nayhouses store on Schoonmaker avenue, made an attempt at suicide via the carbolic acid route.

Miss Vezzetti was somewhat despondent over the future prospects for a happy life and sought to end her earthly career. This was her second attempt, the latter almost proving successful. It seems the girl purchased the liquid from a Belle Vernon druggist stating that she wanted to make a mixture with which to wash her feet. The vial contained 5 cents worth of the poisin and this was taken at two doses, the girls life being saved in the latter instance through the use of a stomach pump. When interviewed today the victim would give no reason for the attempt at the rash act except that she was tired of life and would do the same thing over again the first time she got a chance. The girl is resting easy today but is in pretty bad shape her mouth and lips being badly burned by the acid.

Pore Hardware Will Remove.

C. S Pore proprietor of the Pore Hardware Co. which establishment he has so successfully conducted for the past several years will remove to the Dillinger Block July 1st where in addition to the Hardware and Tinning business he will add a large and complete line of furniture.

Mr. Pore has rented both rooms one of which will be used as in the past for the hardware business which will be continued on the same lines as in the past while the other will be utilized for the furniture department. Mr. Pore's long business experience coupled with the confidence the public of this vicinity repose in him on account of his straight forward methods will no doubt add materially to his success which he deserves.

Cow Got Drunk.

"Intoxicated from over-indulgence in the use of alcoholic liquors" is the diagnosis in the case of a Connellsville cow which yesterday afternoon set the mountain village of Normalville wild with excitement. The bovine had licked up the entire contents of a barrel of hard cider which had been accidently overturned and after it had taken effect started on a rampage through the the principal streets of the village Fences, wagons, boxes and live stock offered no effectual barrier in its path. The cow ran down the road until, fagged out with the strenuous pace, she rolled into a ditch along the roadside. An effective posse of citizens was hastily organized and the beast was bound, muzzled and a physician summoned to examine her.

ONE MAN WAS KILLED.

One man was killed and 14 were injured in a wreck on the Pennsylvania railroad at Blairsville intersection last night when a work train crashed into a coal train which was standing on the main line. The dead man is Conductor Higson of the work train.

A flagman had been sent back by the work train, but on account of a blinding downpour of rain he had not seen it in time. The work train was running backward, with conductor Higson and a score of foreigners in the caboose, which struck the rear of the coal train. Higson was instantly killed.

The injuries received by the others are not serious, except in the case of the timekeeper of the work crew, who was sent to the Greensburg hospital. Physicians were sent for from Blairsville. Higson's body was taken to his home in New Florence. Eight cars were piled up in the wreck.

Unfortunate Toes.

"Never mind; I have six toes," said Pierce E. Franks when he was arrested at Cumberland on a warrant from Charleroi, Pa. charging him with embezzlement, and was asked to remove his shoes. Franks consented to return to Pennsylvania without requisition papers. He was treasurer of a fire company and is charged with appropriating $200 belonging to the organization. Franks was for a time manager of the Union Supply store at Donora, and it is said a thorough reorganization and reconstruction was necessary along business lines after he wound up there.

A packer from Omaha grabbed the lot
And into pressed chicken did grind them

THE street sweeper made its appearance last night and much to our surprise the streets were clean this morning. Let the good work go on.

As soon as we get a street to the river we will have another nice long fight on our hands. That outlet to the country should be the next issue. We should either have a new road into Rostraver township in a more direct way or repair the old road and make a better grade.

WHILE the parties are now about ready for the great struggle for supremacy which is soon to come off in this commonwealth, there is little reason to suppose matters will become exciting until the end of the summer. Probably with the beginning of September the battle will actually commence and it is likely to be decidedly interesting.

AN exchange says: One of our citizens who occasionally wipes the dishes for his wife, got tired and quit, saying, "It is not a man's work." Not feeling disposed to lose his help she brought the Bible out to convince him of his error and read to him as follows from II Kings 21:13 "And I will wipe Jerusalem as a man wipeth a dish, wiping and turning it upside down." It is needless to say he is still doing his occasional stunt.

BURGESS Siosson, of Connellsville, has inaugurated a war against suspicious characters. People out at all hours of the night must be able to give a satisfactory account of themselves or be locked up until morning. There are some people who roam the streets of Monessen both day and night, who, if asked to give an account of themselves could not do it in a very creditable manner. They should all be picked up and fined or made get out of town.

THE business men of Monessen are to be commended for their action in closing the stores at 6 p. m. during the hot summer months. This gives the clerks as well as the employers an evening rest which is much needed after the long day's confinement. It does not retard business in the least. People buy the same amount but they do their shopping earlier in the day.

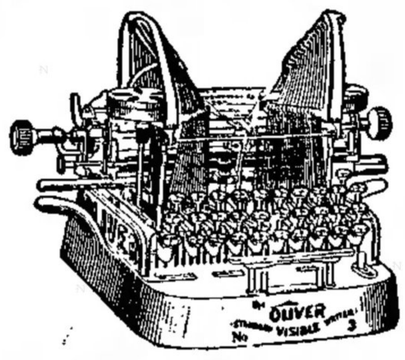
The Oliver Typewriter is just like an athletic stripped for a race



It is free from unnecessary multiplicity of wires and springs

No net work of flimsy keys to get tied into hard knots

The nimble fingered stenographer can put talk into type with this machine just as rapidly as she takes your dictation.

For no matter how swiftly she writes, she can see just what she's doing.

The keyboard is so wonderfully responsive to the touch of the finger tips that speed comes without effort.

The factors that make for speed are its visible writing, its light, elastic key-touch, and it's all 'round simplicity. It has the fewest possible wearing points, and it prints with a downward stroke.

The OLIVER Typewriter

THE STANDARD VISIBLE WRITER

is a flawless piece of mechanism, combining the strength of tested steel with the perfect adjustment of the works of a watch. You can use an Oliver a life time and the type will not lose alignment

Thrust Upon Him

By OTHO B. SENGA

Copyright, 1906, by E. C. Parcells

Squire Hart looked the young fellow over keenly.

"M—m!" giving his pudgy hand to the clasp of the long, thin one extended in greeting. "Ralph Reed, eh? And what do you do? Football, I suppose, like the rest of these donkeys!"

Reed laughed good humoredly.

"No, Mr. Hart, I wouldn't stand the ghost of a chance in a rush. I'm on the track team."

"He's the champion sprinter, papa," interposed Elsie eagerly. "He won five points for the blue in the intercollegiate contest!"

Her father frowned at her enthusiasm, and Reed's thin, brown face colored.

"You ought to run," grumbled the squire, continuing his examination of the young fellow; "you're built like a greyhound or a grasshopper!"

Reed, outwardly at ease, flinched inwardly under the squire's keen scrutiny. His compact with the pretty Elsie would be null and void without her father's consent, and he felt that his athletic career was a detriment in the eyes of the older man. He was not at all encouraged by the remarks that followed.

"I don't believe in it," irascibly. "Boys go to college to study, or ought to, and they make a business of some kind of foolish play. If those football fellows," pointing to the three other young men who were his daughter's guests for the spring vacation, "had to work one-half as hard sawing wood or plowing, they'd think they were terribly abused."

Some one called Elsie, and she hurried away, giving a pleading glance at her lover which he interpreted as counseling him to patience.

"And as for running," continued the squire, with increasing choler, for he, too, had seen the pleading glance, "as for running, why should a man of ordinary courage care to excel as a runner? Running is an accomplishment for cowards!"

THEN A STREAK OF BLUE DASHED BY HIM.

The blood rushed to the dark face, but Reed spoke quietly and courteously.

"There are things to run for as well as things to run from, Mr. Hart, and I hope I'd not be lacking if a test of courage came to me."

* * * * * * *

It was a merry party that roamed over the fields and through the woods searching for the earliest spring flowers; that rode and drove and sang and danced.

Young Reed and his fair hostess carried heavy hearts that made gayety an effort and laughter a mockery. The squire had refused to sanction their engagement, to listen to any suggestion or to make any promises for the future.

"I'll wait," he said grimly, "until you have shown that you can do something besides run!"

Apparently oblivious to the sports of the guests at Hart's Holm, the squire had kept a keen eye on them all. He rather admired the dogged pertinacity with which Reed took his daily run of three or four miles over the country roads. He smiled grimly when he saw the young fellow start out as if for a walk wearing a long raincoat over his running togs.

"Doesn't mean to give any unnecessary offense to the 'crewel parient,'" chuckled the squire appreciatively, "but intends to have his own way just the same.

"It'll be rather quiet and lonely at the house tomorrow," soliloquized the squire as he drove along, sniffing the fresh, clear air of the bright spring morning. "The lads and lassies all go today. I wish I hadn't been quite so sharp with Elsie and that young fellow. He seems a fine, manly chap. But what on earth does he want to run for?" ending irritably. "Hello, Bartlett, what's the matter with your horse?"

He had reached the top of a long, steep hill, and overtaken a neighbor with a heavy load of rock.

"Stepped on a stone that rolled, and gone as lame as a lazy man's excuses," Bartlett answered characteristically.

"Suppose I hitch in my team and take the load down for you," suggested the squire, "it's all level after we pass my house. You can lead yours down Sit still, Betty Bartlett, and hold on tight," playfully addressing the little girl perched on the seat. "My horses are frisky, you know."

Bartlett had locked the wagon wheels preparatory to making the descent, but as the squire lifted the tongue for the other horses to be hitched in the lock chain snapped and broke and the heavily loaded wagon started down the hill.

He shouted to Bartlett, who, hampered by the four horses, lost his head and only bawled, "Whoa, Hart, whoa!"

Hart held on to the tongue and braced back with all his strength, but despite his efforts the wagon went flying down the hill like an engine on down grade.

"Hold on tight, Betty," the squire managed to scream.

He knew that if he dropped the tongue the wagon would be tipped over instantly and that there would be small chance indeed for the life of the child; so he too "held on tight" and ran as if fleeing from death.

"Go on, horsy," cried Betty, in great glee; "go faster!"

The squire couldn't spare breath now even to groan. The heavy wagon, with a ton of rock behind him, crashed and roared, bounced over the rough places in the road, struck fire from cut stones, and the man ran till his legs seemed merely rags fluttering in a fierce wind.

Almost at the foot! If only he could hold out a few seconds more! And then he tried to close his eyes—for there, crossing the road, directly in the path from which he dared not diverge, was a little scarlet clad figure drawing a child's cart!

Bobby—his own little Bobby!

He tried to pray, he tried again to close his eyes, and then a streak of blue dashed by him, the scarlet spot was caught up and rushed to safety!

He jumped instinctively when he reached the little cart, and it was crushed to pieces under the thundering wheels.

He had reached the level. He could feel the slackening of the terrific speed, but he still ran on, miles it seemed to him now, before he could stop the demon that was forcing him onward.

"Go on, horsy! Gidd up!" cried the insatiate Betty as the squire dropped limp to the ground. "You can be my horsy now," she remarked complacently to the first of the young men who reached the side of the exhausted squire.

They quickly improvised a stretcher from the blankets and carried the unconscious man to the house.

He opened his eyes after awhile and looked anxiously about him.

"Bobby's all right," said some one quickly, "and the little girl—and—and, I guess, everybody."

"Ralph!" gasped the squire.

"Here I am, Mr. Hart," bending over him.

"I am glad you can run," faintly.

"So am I, Mr. Hart," feelingly. "I feared you were going to run over me, though."

"We'll have to concede you to be the champion sprinter!" cried one of the other men. "That was a pretty long dash, sure enough!"

"Ralph must yield the palm to you, squire," added another jovially.

The squire shook his head feebly.

"He—he 'achieved' it," he whispered, his eyes on Ralph's fine face, "but it—it was"— He sighed wearily.

"It was 'thrust upon you,' you mean, squire," understandingly.

The squire smiled grimly in acquiescence.

Cromwell's Burial Place.

The thirty acres of this great cemetery (Abney Park) include the site of another large old house and its grounds, Fleetwood House, once the residence of General Fleetwood and his wife, who was Bridget, the daughter of Oliver Cromwell. This sight is to the right of the avenue, and there one summer day, among older and plainer tombstones than those of the Abney, or opposite, side, I saw men mowing the long grass and presently came upon a mound inclosed with an iron rail. The mound itself was covered with ivy, but trimmed so that one could read on a red granite slab the words, "This mound was a favorite retirement of the late Isaac Watts, D. D." Tradition says he loved that mound because from it he could see the open country. It is now hemmed in by houses, but the mound is still solitary. Another tradition tells of a rumor current soon after Cromwell's death to the effect that the Protector's body was not in the coffin that was buried with regal pomp in the abbey, but had been secretly brought down to his daughter's house and laid to rest where now is the mound.—Christian World.

How He Knew.

There is a very forgetful girl in Denver, living up on Washington street. Fearing a young man who called on her last week would stay too long she set the clock in the parlor half an hour ahead. She was tired, having been out horseback riding that day, and wanted to get to bed early. The scheme worked. But then she forgot to turn the clock back and, having numerous young men friends, she also very carelessly forgot which one it was. Last night the young man called again. The clock was still fast and he noticed it.

"That clock is wrong, isn't it?" he asked.

"Yes," she replied. "I set it ahead so a fellow who called Wednesday night would go home in time to let me get some sleep."

"The clock fooled him all right," said the caller quietly.

"How do you know?" she asked.

The young man smiled a sickly smile. "I called Wednesday night."

The girl coughed.

"We're having so much trouble in getting a hired girl," she said. "Does your mother ever have difficulty securing good help?"—Denver Post.

"Several years since my lungs were so badly affected that I had many hemorrhages," writes A. M. Ake, of Wood, Ind. "I took treatment with several physicians without any benefit. A man who is in perfect health, so he can do an honest day's work when necessary, has much for which he should be thankful. Mr. L. C. Mark Twain on Advertising.

Mark Twain in the midst of a panegyric on advertising told a remarkable story.

"There was a man," he said, "back Iowa way who was so pleased with an advertisement in the local paper that he wrote the following testimonial letter to the editor:

"Mr. Editor: Sir—After selling all I could, giving barrels away, stuffing my hogs till they would eat no more, I still had last fall about 200 tons of big, juicy, fine flavored apples left on my hands. I inserted in your valuable paper an ad that I was willing to send free a barrel of picked fruit, freight paid in advance by me, to any one who would apply, there being, of course, no charge for the barrel. You will hardly credit it, but that little forty cent ad. cleared out my whole stock of apples, and I could have disposed of five times the quantity on the same terms."

Drinking of Healths.

The drinking of healths in wine or liquor or other kinds originated in Britain at the time of the rule of the Danes, before Alfred the Great finally succeeded in driving them from the land. Owing to the assassination of Englishmen by the Danes, it became a custom to enter into compacts for the mutual preservation of health and security. These compacts were usually pledged in wine, and hence the custom of drinking healths.

A Spelling Test.

The catch question has often been asked, "How many words in the English language end in dous?" The common answer is four—hazardous, jeopardous, tremendous and stupendous. As a matter of fact, however, there are five, and the word often overlooked is hybridous, meaning mongrel or of mixed sort.

Driven From Home.

"Jinx had to put up at the hotel last night. He had quarreled with his cook."

"Why, the idea! What was Mrs. Jinx doing, to stand for a thing like that?"

"Mrs. Jinx is his cook."—Fort Worth Record.

Startled the Doctor.

An Aberdeenshire doctor who recently attended a woman was somewhat staggered at receipt of the following epistle from her: "Please come and vaccinate the child you gave birth to last week."—Caledonian Medical Journal.

A SUCCESSFUL CONVENTION.

Fayette Countians Report Progress in Sabbath School Work.

The Tenth Annual Sabbath School Convention of Fayette County, Pa., convened in the First Presbyterian church of Fayette City, June 26 and 27th, 1906. Two hundred delegates reported from almost every section of the county. This convention represents 27,000 Sabbath School scholars, a gain of 10,000 additions to the schools of the county in three years. The convention was marked with unusual enthusiasm from the first section to its close and bespeaks large things for the future Sabbath school work in this district.

The most prominent speakers out of the county were President Crawford of Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa., and Miss E. C. Lincoln, State Supt. of Primary Work, Philadelphia, and Rev. Chas. A. Oliver, State Supt. Normal Dept, York, Pa.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year;-President, B. S. Forsythe, Dawson, Pa.; Vice-President, Rev. J. D. Gold, Uniontown, Pa.; Rec. Sec. Miss Margaret Phillips, Smock, Pa.; Cor. Sec. J. Allen Crawford, Dawson, Pa.; Treasrer, Frank Snider, Uniontown, Pa: Home Dept. Supt. Rev. W. V. Barnhart, Connellsville, Pa. Primary Dept. Supt., Rev. J. D. Brison, Dawson, Pa., Normal Dept. Supt. Rev. M. A. Rigg, Connellsville, Pa.

Can't Get Constable.

The little city of Glassport just above McKeesport is in the "soup" for the want of a constable service and the following ad is conspicuous in the window of a Justice of the Peace of that place. "Right party can have good constable job paying $5 per day." A few days after Justice Coursin of that place began a crusade against stores which kept open on Sunday his constable quit.

Meantime the stores have been doing a rushing business Sundays. Justice Coursin says the borough as well as himself is suffering because of the lack of a constable.

He should advertise in Monessen and find that the efforts would compensate him for his trouble: No difficulty is experienced here in getting fellows to experiment with the job. Its a job that will bring a man into prominence as soon as his commission is handed down and we cannot see why the good justice has trouble in securing competant help.

Notice.

For the last ten days we have been closing our store at 6:15 but until further notice we will keep open until 8.00 o'clock except Saturdays we will be open until 10 p.m. H. J Bearer & Co., 449 Donner avenue.

TAIL ENDERS SHUT OUT.

Locals Have No Difficulty in Disposing of Them Yesterday Evening.

The baseball aggregation representing Fayette City was shut out by the locals at Athletic park yesterday afternoon, the final score being Monessen five to the visitors' get some. "South paw" Blumling was on the rubber and was all to the candy. Besides his puzzling assortment of leaders, he brought his little calcimine pot along and the way he soused those poor fellows in the lime juice was something awful. The four bingles he did allow them were scattered and at no time except in the sixth when they got a man to third was there danger of them scoring. Blumling however arose to the occasion and the visitor's chances to escape a row of goose eggs went glimmering.

The clever left hander also secured one of Monessen's four hits and scored a run in addition to making monkeys of some of the visiting batsmen. The locals opened the game by scoring one in the first, one in the second and two in the fourth when Boyer went up in the air and started to dealing out passes and hitting batters. They also got one in the fifth but after this the visiting team settled down and there was no more scoring. A drizzling rain which fell in the third and fourth innings made it somewhat hard on the slat artiste. The score:

Base Ball Scraps.

Well done, boys.

Now comes the Champs.

Blumling had 'em at his mercy.

The Champs are on the slump.

Take off your hats to "Lefty" Blumling.

Keep going fellows—every one helps a little.

Monessen played rings around Fayette City.

Blumling fooled seven of those south paw hitters.

Charleroi got lammed good and proper yesterday.

Broman accepted two pretty chances in left garden.

Wonder what excuse the Champs have for quitting.

Fayette City played like a lot of school boys in the fourth.

Monessen had her little calcimine pot out again yesterday.

The third and fourth innings were played in a drizzling rain.

Charleroi was licked by the Scottdale sluggers yesterday 17 to 3.

H. Elliot wakened up the fans in the seventh by capturing a hard fly.

Haggerman will do the twirling against the Champs Saturday. Oh mercy!

If Mike O'Brien could play ball like he can kick it would be the big league for his.

Boyer walked seven men and hit two. Wonder where he get the idea he could pitch.

For the benefit of Fayette it might be well to say that it takes more than kicking to win games.

There was some fast fielding on the part of both Fayette City and Monessen in the last inning.

The Monongahela-Belle Vernon game ended in a rumpus, the Champs forfeiting to the Athletics.

In only one inning, the sixth, were the visitors dangerous, but Blumling settled down and retired them runless.

When Charleroi got ready to leave Scottdale yesterday it was found that the latter had hinged Coffman and McIlvain for "23" bings. Skidoo!
